ENVIRONMENTAL CARE AND PHYSICAL WELL-BEING AS A RECOGNITION OF EFFORT

The Green Team would like to share with you how environmental care has been increasingly permeating different activities and practices across our centers, as we are seeing more innovative initiatives that promote environmental stewardship while also supporting the students' holistic development.

On this occasion, we share two practices from Mexico. Both were activities carried out to celebrate the students' work throughout the year during the Student Award Event ceremonies at the La Asunción, Plaza Amy, Paseo Colón, and Plaza Villada centers in Toluca, in the State of Mexico.

In the first activity, the Instructors Ana Cecilia from La Asunción center, Rocío from Plaza Amy center, and Gaby from Paseo Colón center designed an event in which students selected a flowerpot and painted it according to their own preferences. The staff from each center supported the students by adding soil and helping them pot the plant of their choice. This activity not only encouraged interaction among students, center staff, and families, but also showcased the students' creativity as they enjoyed the natural surroundings of the park where the event took place.

The second activity was carried out by Instructor Gaby from the Plaza Villada center. Parents and students were invited so that the students could enjoy themselves at a rock climbing venue. In addition to providing a fun and recreational experience, this activity also supports the development of physical skills that are essential for optimal learning. It is worth mentioning that engaging in this type of activity requires good physical condition, which goes hand in hand with maintaining a healthy environment.

In this way, an event as important as celebrating students' achievements also fosters creativity and self-confidence, benefiting both the students and the environment.
